About Shaw Lens and Shaw Vision

Shaw Lens holds a U.S. patent protected lens technology that can solve a condition for people who wear glasses, known as aniseikonia. It is a condition that causes each eye to perceive the size of objects differently. Issues related can include headaches, double vision, disorientation or dizziness, tearing, eye pain or fatigue, sensitivity to light, visual acuity issues and trouble reading, as well as nausea...according to the Columbia University Department of Ophthalmology... “20-30% of the general spectacle wearing population may have a measurable amount of aniseikonia.” The potential market size for corrective lenses for aniseikonia is over 800 million people that may be currently living with some degree of aniseikonia and its relative effects.
